Adrenochrome in Yukon? Anonymous (ID: OmRDngNX)

Hey /pol/. I'm honestly not sure if this is the best place to post all this or if /x/ is more suited for it, but I don't know what to do with this information and am genuinely wondering if it's just me being a little bit schizo or if it's maybe something more, I don't know. I just want your input on all of this.

It all started when surfing the archives a while back led me down a rabbit-hole concerning Adrenochrome theories. Which in turn, led into a thread from 2017 in which an alleged Highway Patrolman talks about how he and his team seized over 20kg in dried adrenochrome enroute to the Yukon territory of Canada. Some other anons in the thread linked the alleged shipping location listed in the thread to the Selkirk Nation of Natives who reside there, and how their nation is partnered with Capstone Mining, a large copper mining firm operating in the Yukon.

Now how this all connects is that Copper is allegedly what allows Adrenochrome to be refined from Epinephrine.

This tidbit of info sent me into looking into Capstone's operations in the Yukon on Google Earth, and whether I could find anything of note there or not. What's interesting is that Capstone's operations in the Yukon only occurred at the gargantuan Minto Mine, owned by Capstone until in 2019 it was sold to Pembrige Resources, another copper firm who then reopened it soon after.

>>425616688 \(OP\)

Now why am I telling you all this?

Well, when I looked up the mine on Google Earth, I was met with five completely blacked out rectangular spots dotted around the mine, (pic related, "trailer" #1). When measured they are also around 35 feet long, which matches up with the size of a small big rig trailer, or what the patrolman alleged the Adrenochrome was being transported in.

So my questions to you all are these. Are these legit trailers? Or are they just errors with Google Earth's software? And if they are trailers then why are they blacked out? What else could be blacked out on a copper mine on Google Earth? What is inside these things if they really are trailers? Also, I promise I'm not a schizo, and I'm even a bit skeptical about the whole Adrenochrome thing being legit myself, but this whole thing really struck me as odd. Any input?

Also >le reddit spacing.

I just want to get the point across as best as I can because I'm at a loss right now.

No. It's just oxidized epinephrine. Copper is not required to be a part of that.

Also a lot of the stuff you read about adrenochrome is complete bullshit. It's just a stress hormone. If you injected it, all it would do us make you feel shitty. It wouldn't "keep you young", or make you high, or be addictive.

The elites already publicly admit that they do cocaine and buy stem cells and plasma from young people. Those are all things that actually work.

They can easily synthesize adrenochrome through oxidation of epinephrine. They use the lab stuff in various experiments. This is probably what they seized. The supposed real Adrenochrome needs a child and an actual pineal gland to be effective.

Or following migration patterns. Back in the Marines, one of my buddies told me he visited his grandpa, who took him on a hike with no electronics. They saw a herd of deer and just watched. A little while later they started hearing bird calls, and next thing they saw was a bigfoot running fast as fuck at the herd, who grabbed one and picked up its body and smashed it twice to the ground. The rest of the bigfoots started gathering around eating it. Fun story, but my buddy also said he was told by his grandpa that they migrate like geese for the winters.

Another thing to consider is natural migration routes. A lot of today's religious sites were the sites of yesterday's sites, so maybe with that analogy our old ft selkirk was a natural migration path for bigfoots? What kind of adrenochrome could they give?

Back about 4-5 years ago there was a big uproar about possible child trafficking camps across the country. There was this one video of a big pvc pipe that led to a step-down area with a bunch of kids toys and such in it. This was found on "Cemex" property, a concrete company. This was around the time people started believing the whole "evil pedophile ring across the country" meme, including myself. I actually went out and took several videos of cemex plants and found some homeless encampments. But what I realized is, this is all bullshit. Its all fucking malarky schizo nonsense. If this stuff was happening wouldn't somebody be able to find some concrete in person proof? If someone wants to point me in the right direction I'm more than happy to go myself with a camera and check it out. But as of now this is all schizo nonsense.

Jews practiced all manner of perversion including rape, torture, and sacrifice of children in the time of antiquity, and those same jews are in power across the west today, therefore it's still happening. Simple as.

The six-pointed Star of Remphan that they have as their emblem (David never had any such symbol, nor were the ancient Israelites the same race as that race called 'jews' today) is another name for Saturn/Chronus, who's rites included child sacrifice and perversion, and also proto-marxism:

>The first inhabitants of Italy were the Aborigines, whose king, Saturnus, is said to have been a man of such extraordinary justice, that no one was a slave in his reign, or had any private property, but all things were common to all, and undivided, as one estate for the use of every one; in memory of which way of life, it has been ordered that at the Saturnalia slaves should everywhere sit down with their masters at the entertainments, the rank of all being made equal. -Justinus, in Epitome of Pompeius Trogus 43.3

The fact that the same people who still worship this same demon and others like it are in power is proof that it's occurring, even if you ignore the ample proof that has already been found - presumably you won't be satisfied with anything less than a signed confession, and are indeed a kike shill yourself.

Holy shit I found it. I've been to similar mines. Before mining, companies drill core samples about 6 metres long. These are long core samples of rock. The core samples get stacked in an organized pile. If you knew the time of day, angle of the sun, you could estimate the height of one of these piles and conclude what depth of rock they are coring to.

Interesting thing about Fort Selkirk. It's a Gaelic Word meaning "Man of the Church".
Weird thing for a First Nation's People to call themselves, isn't it? Oh, their name is actually the Hucha Hudan people?

<http://selkirkfn.com/government/about/our-people/>

Why use that name then?

<http://register.yukonhistoricplaces.ca/Place/1170> (check out the 4th picture, with the Sun and Water and checkerboard design of the Stone House)

Well, it comes from an old expedition. A fellow named Robert Campbell was the one to erect the Fort at the location. Check out this account (bad Indians + It is the Yukon!):

<http://www.mhs.mb.ca/docs/transactions/1/robertcampbell.shtml>

Oh wow, ravenous cannibal Natives that lurked just a little south of Fort Selkirk's eventual location? No way... Say, what's 10 miles South of Fort Selkirk? Oh, those weird pits that this thread is about? Huh...

Why did they mention Robert Campbell drinking out of a "Horned Cup", what's that all about? Interesting that Campbell claims a Pastor notorious for his philosophies on Death would be the reason he was saved.

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/James_Hervey

Last, what's up with the Church? Is the Alpha and Omega always on an Altar? First time I've personally seen that. Is this supposed to be the Church of Revelations or something. Weird place anons...

I don't know that the cave thing was particularly malicious. the issue was people kept going caving there, and dying. the Canadian government said it was unsafe, and they were problem right. the conspiracy that was latched onto here was it was some kind of passage to inner earth, a DUMB, etc.

caves would make decent staging areas, but they'd need to still be accessible somehow. so I would say the mining sites make more sense, and the blacked out vs clone tool'd follows too. if it isn't a court order, this is probably a private party that doesn't actually want to get law enforcement involved to hide their activities, but they also don't want it on Google Earth still. so I think OP is on to something.

I guess caves might work as a comparison to what we're seeing here, with it blacked out. but I doubt the caves would be tied to potential adrenochrome activity.

> 45-60 Minutes. It might be a new thread by then. The cargo was shipped from Cote D'Ivoire via a shell company(AJAS Shipping and Freight), we and other Agencies around the Country have intercepted 15 Tractor-Trailers carrying 20kg(44.1lbs) of Adrenochrome each - 1,200kg/1,202.5 lbs. 1kg is worth $1.5bil on the market. All shipments were headed for Reservation in the Yukon Territory, Canada. That Reservation has a copper mine and cooper is needed for synthetic Andrenochrome production or extraction/conversion into Adrenochrome from indigenous Epinephrine secreted via the Adrenal Glands. Adrenochrome is a Neurotoxin, Date Rape drug, Mental/Schizophrenia inducer(read up on the Adrenochrome Hypothesis) and used in unofficial roles as booster to super-potent Opioids for targeted killing(Carfentanil and those classes). The US Secret Service was been contacted by myself, and we showed them all of the evidence. and I have spoken with them one on one(how I found out about the other trucks) due to use finding $100bil worth of potential cash. US$4.5 to US$6 trillion(in total) was trying to cross an International Border. The USSS Agents said that with the 15 trucks caught; it is likely 45 to 60 more crossed the Border successfully for a hand-off to new drivers into Calgary. I am still interviewing (interrogating) the driver that the Highway Patrol caught. I took the case off of them.

The shape of the niggerbox is man made. I'm not sure if that's what you mean by "sharpness of the edges." What is under them should not be assumed to also be a rectangle 100% of the time. At the mine itself that would be a good assumption considering there are trailers there that would fit the shape.

I don't think this is right. we know adrenochrome is basically epinephrine, but there seems to be more to it as a drug. I do believe it's real, but part of me thinks it's essentially a street name or the equivalent. that, or maybe the ritual is more the real purpose, if you get what I mean. we know they abuse children, habitually. that's not even debatable.

Looks like Selkirk First Nation may have outed an operative. Look for glowie ties related to Brent Nibecker.

<https://www.cbc.ca/news/canada/north/selkirk-drug-dealer-injunction-1.6828871>

CBC: Alleged drug dealer temporarily barred from Selkirk First Nation land

> Selkirk's chief and council have called Nibecker a "threat to public order and the safety of SFN citizens in Pelly Crossing." They passed a resolution in February to keep him out of Pelly Crossing, but that hasn't kept Nibecker away.

>Nibecker lives near Dawson City and is not a member of Selkirk First Nation, but the court petition claims he sometimes stays at a residence in Pelly Crossing.

>On Monday, the court told Nibecker he now has until May 5 to leave Pelly Crossing, where the First Nation is based. Should he return after that date, he could be held in contempt of court or taken to court again by the First Nation.

Bigfoot migration? I'd imagine they'd be more spread out, dispersed, and way fewer than what we've seen in this one area, but there is an american national forest not too far from this area.

I dont think they jettisoned 35 ft trailers in random areas. I dont think its space dust or solar wind corrupting the image.

I found an old post on Reddit that seems to shed some light on more details about this Adrenochrome.

>Inb4 go back to le Reddit

>According to this, there are a ton of things that don't make sense: https://www.reddit.com/r/conspiracy/comments/su9l11/trudeau_has_a_connection_to_a_canadian/

First of all, that's $100 billion of organically produced Adrenochrome. What the fuck is it doing bound for the middle of nowhere in Yukon?

Secondly, it's organic Adrenochrome. Meaning it's not produced from naturally occurring minerals or chemical processes. This came from a biological source, at least according to the test results. The only way to harvest this organic form is from the glands of humans apparently. With 20kg found, that's a lot of dead humans.

Or maybe it's being harvested with a method we don't know about. Maybe clone tissue, or something even more sinister?

Another thing worth pointing out is that they got billions of worth of this substance across the border through presumably a legitimate crossing and nobody suspected a thing.

after giving the previous threads a good look, it seems more and more likely that this might be some some kind of elaborate larp to distract from the topic of Trump replacing people in alphabet agencies with military officers. Then again, we know Trump is kiked, and probably did not have much better intentions. Dunno what to think of all of it all at this point. Just find it a bit fishy that this tripfag Highway Patrolman agency guy suddenly stops posting. From a previous thread:

You know what's fucked up? Here's the story of what happened last night

>In thread about some shit, can't remember, something about Trump/Manafort/Mueller/Uranium One
>Some guy comes in not looking like your standard LARP at all, saying some actually interesting, relevant shit
>Eludes to Trump's overall plans and says we should basically find out what contingencies have to be in place to use military intelligence instead of the alphabet agencies
>Basically 'peace, guys, but this should be some cool stuff to check out'
>Actually activated our almonds because he didn't sound like a LARPing faggot at all
>Someone started a thread to discuss what he said
>Make it to the middle of the second thread, looking into old court cases and US laws, martial law, precedents, actual good stuff
>Find out there's ways the POTUS can act without Congress to install military officers in place of alphabet officers into CIA, FBI, literally everywhere if certain conditions are met - effectively taking over all alphabet agencies
>Also discuss Posse Comitatus Act, the fact that it doesn't apply to the Marine Corps, Trump has conveniently surrounded himself with Marine generals, and the conditions in which Trump could actually unleash the Marine Corps on domestic soil to fight domestic terrorists
>Along comes Special Agent Adrenolarp and now everyone is talking about this shit again

Diving into the first of these shareholders, we have Cooper Holdings: <http://www.cooperholdingscorp.com/>

It seems Cooper Holdings has 4 main brands that make up the whole company.

>The first is Yah.: <https://www.yahagency.com/>

Looking at their website, they seem to be a "sponsorship and activation agency."

I'm not quite sure what this means, but it's interesting to see how the word activation is circled kek.

Apparently they do work with AT&T, the sports industry (namely cricket), and a alcohol company called Deep Eddy Vodka.

They're probably just your average quirky PR firm. They seem to promote AT&T's IoT and 5G programs quite heavily. I don't buy into the 5G stuff but make of that what you will.

>Next up we have CSE: <https://www.csetalentrep.com/>

They too appear to be a quirky PR style firm, and brand themselves as a talent representative company based in "Atlanta, New York and Richmond VA."

They were founded in 1986 where a cross company deal with big brands such as Coca-Cola lead to SE's creation. The NBA coach Mike Fratello gets name dropped here, as do many other big name coaches across American sport in the 80's. Lonnie Cooper help founded the company in this phase, we will talk more on that in a bit.

In 2006, they seemed to get involved with representing the big names in the breakfast cereal market.

In 2017, they landed April Ryan a gig as a CNN political analyst, helping her transition into the media sector from the white house.

They're still involved in the NBA though, helping Doc Rivers and James Wade get their jobs as coaches in 2020 and 2021 respectively.

>Up third is IfThen: <https://www.ifthen.com/>

They allegedly help radio shows, podcasts, etc. They seem to be another branding type company, but more situated to the technological side of things, such as web design and user feedback.

National Geographic seems to be the biggest of their clients. This company seems the most inoffensive of the 4 that make up Cooper Holdings.

Youth fiction book about Pierre Trudeau and a wendigo in the Yukon.

> Our' Pierre had already had a rather curious encounter with a young Indian at one of the steamer's pauses along the Yukon River, but after they had settled into the cabin abandoned by the previous owners of the claim that the Trudeaus were looking at, the two of them had encounters with first an aboriginal family who were living surreptitiously in the area to avoid having their daughter whipped off to residential school, and then a couple of characters strange enough and strong enough to be thought to be supernatural. It could have ended badly for them, but, of course, it didn't. Were these peculiar creatures actually a couple of wendigos (the bear equivalent of werewolves), trying to kill strangers invading their territory?

New post cause character limit was too long.

>Finally we have Lonnie Cooper Ventures: <https://www.lcoopventures.com/>

This appears to be the same Lonnie Cooper that has their fingers all over the NBA pie as far back as 86 with CSE (see previous post).

LCV seems to be made up of two smaller companies themselves. The first is a really weird company called Off Leash.

Apparently a dog friendly cafe type deal based in Georgia.

>Website here: <https://www.oldogpark.com/locations>

This one just strikes me as really odd. For a whole company that's built around PR firms and big contracts with big time clients and firms, what is Lonnie Cooper Ventures doing with a dog park/bar type thing, where you don't even need to bring a dog with you to get in. But if you do bring a dog, they need a membership? The building is huge too, maybe a burger can shed some light on this please?

The second company that makes up Lonnie Cooper Ventures is Collegiate Aviation Solutions. They provide charter services for planes, which would probably link them to the runway OP posted earlier.

This one kind of make sense, a mine in the middle of nowhere needs supplies that can only be brought in by air.

But why group this business together with a dog based business? It's such a weird combination and doesn't make sense at all.

It's worth noting that CAS doesn't own its own aircraft, they just basically connect the dots and book the flights. They must have good contacts in the aviation industry to do this. They're also based in Atlanta.

Lonnie Cooper himself is the CEO of CAS, so he has direct control over this company.

I would look into the others, but desu I'm tired and ill as fuck, so maybe I'll do a deep dive and make a proper organised thread about this another time.

Maybe I need to get some adrenochrome to pick me up kek.

The Minto mine is located off the Klondike highway between Carmacks and Pelly Crossing, about five hours north of Skagway.

Minto's copper concentrate is trucked to Skagway, where it's stored until there's enough to fill a shipment. The ore is then sent to a Japanese smelter and refinery, processed and delivered to the Sumitomo Corporation.

Minto needs another way to reach tidewater to keep those deliveries going.

One more mini filler update before I go to sleep.

>Pembridge Resources PLC and LionPoint LLC: <https://markets.ft.com/data/announce/full?dockey=1323-14097061-4QDM9DG5P2BQ9LDCNGIVBHQOH0>

I couldn't find much on these guys apart from the fact that Pembridge Resources is a UK registered company and they brought out a fuck ton of shares to be a major player in the mine.

It seems as if LionPoint exists also simply to help with cash flow, and in exchange they get a bunch of shares. This isn't unusual in the world of business.

One interesting thing to note is that there's a clause that payments to Capstone by Minto Metals only commences once the mine reaches at least 60% productive capacity.

This was in 2019 and the mine was open and in operation for a good few years already at this point, so why is it operating at less than 60% capacity presumably? Were they having financial problems?

It seems as if Pembridge Resources are the ones handling the actual production at the mine, and they're new players to the shareholders table alongside the others.

Negotiations to buy the shares allegedly took 12 months, but this is anything but unusual in the world of finance.

>Because Pembridge Resources is a PLC, you can see their financial reports here:
<https://www.pembridgeresources.com/investors/financial-reports>

They appear to be a energy investment company, and their main cash cow is the mine itself. They're also strong players on the London Stock Exchange.

The main executive and non executive owners for the company are a bunch of wealthy Bulgarians for the most part.

There's nothing unusual here... Except for the fact that director Guy Le Bel has links to Quebec separatists, and the Kintavar Exploration Inc.

>Kintavar is a bit of a weird one: <https://kintavar.com/>

I think they're looking to build massive gold mining towns in the Yukon region? They handle a lot of copper as well.

Their website seems to suggest they work with natives and rural communities.

The black dots could be covering up ground control points. This allows satellites to correspond images to actual coordinates. Mines use satellites to monitor production.

Most likely answer actually. Lots of rumours about the Chinese operating at these mines.

You've been a great help. In the past it used to be easier to know you were looking at an old image. No surprise it's changed, and because of that I've provided outdated information in an earlier post. Sorry frens I don't like to do that.

Forest fires do weird shit. Fires in general do. Could be those are newer houses too that used hardy plank instead of vinyl, or maybe stucco.

Fantastic, all of this will be cataloged on a doc. I'll share it if there's another thread about this. Also I saw that an anon archived the thread, thank you for that genuinely.

Another plausible theory. The question is whether or not the mine is a pioneer in implementing this, because no other mine I've been able to find has any censorship whatsoever surrounding it.
