I think archives don't start until basically a thread is automatically removed after a certain period of time of inactivity. Everything should be archived within hours, not 6 months or whatever it is. Jim set that up like that on purpose to be able to delete things because deleted threads and comments don't get archived. Just like on Reddit

If it gets deleted in less than a minute, it is the admin posting it. Why? Because if it's routinely being deleted within 1 minute of being posted, it's always being posted by the one deleting it. There's no way in hell, an admin would always be around every minute to delete every child porn link within in seconds.
