The Bible says God created good and evil. So I don't think you need to like evil groups of people. But who knows.

in the spirit you are made in the image of God, the part that choses what is right from wrong is what links you to God, and also seperates you from him, since he was the first that chose how morality worked. That is why differnt humans have different moral compasses.

Evil in that context isn't wickedness. Dumb niggerbrain zoomer.

Exodus 32:14 And the LORD repented of the evil which he thought to do unto his people.

Evil in such a context is a punishment or harm God brings to punish wicked people. Evil isn't solely defined as wickedness in the Bible, it depends on context.

I suggest setting aside any resentments and predispositions, and getting to know God without trying to like or dislike God. Judge not lest ye be judged. See what happens, it sounds harder than it is.

"Do not love the world or anything in the world. If anyone loves the world, love for the Father is not in them."

"Like a tiny drop of dew, or a bubble floating in a stream; Like a flash of lightning in a summer cloud, Or a flickering lamp, an illusion, a phantom, or a dream." "So is all conditioned existence to be seen." Thus spoke Buddha.

We live in a polar world, in the gray area where the concepts & experiences of a metaphorical Heaven & Hell exist. I imagine the world is half "good", half "evil", perfectly split, down to the molecular level. positive charges, negative charges, so too are our actions & emotions positively and negatively charged. That's my interpretation at least.

We are all the same individual in the semantic sense that the word "I" is common to all of us. The English edition didn't exactly get this correct but the versions of the Torah closer to the source seem to indicate we were willed into existence. So God unintentionally created us from wanting to exist. So if what created us was loneliness or a longing for life, then this dilemma can be reconciled by seeking happiness.

Negative and positive polarities are illusions, not fundamental, toys for beings who have forgotten themselves.

Loneliness.

What first created loneliness? And wouldn't that need worlds of other creations first, like separation, limits, suffering.

You must see God as a sky daddy, as a limited being who can suffer. Didn't we evolve past these primitive views already?

>>39070574 #

Wouldn't perceiving God as a sky daddy assume God is infallible? I don't believe God is a sky daddy whatever the fuck that means in your parentally influenced psychology. The other way around, loneliness created separation limits and suffering.

You should behold god's creation and not be such a whiny faggot. But you yourself are a creation of God. So I behold you too. You too are sublime, else God wouldn't have things be so. He allows all bad things to happen, that do happen, obviously. That's how it works. You deal with hardships, then go back to heaven, because you are an individual soul doing what you do.

Anonymous 10/19/24(Sat)05:08:05 No.39070633

>>39070613 #

You do see God as a beingness-person, something that can suffer, something that has to face loneliness. You don't see God as the creator of all including loneliness.

Imagine absolute nothingness, now add only God, there can't be loneliness because it has not been created yet, there is no separation or the concept of others either.

Your version of the story needs God to first create things that can cause suffering, and then buy into the suffering, while forgetting how there is no need to suffer.

In order to create free will you must have multiple dimensions of movement. When free will was engraved into the void of nothingness it manifested along with good and evil.

>free will

Does not exist according to the bible (Romans 9 11-23)

An omniscient god also negates free will because he created you knowing exactly what would happen and was fine with it

Wouldn't God also remain outside of that, not being lost to the world of manifestations.

"What if God, willing to shew his wrath, and to make his power known, endured with much longsuffering the vessels of wrath fitted to destruction:

And that he might make known the riches of his glory on the vessels of mercy, which he had afore prepared unto glory,"

Those verses were explaining that we are without fault because nothing is seperate from the will of God but as noted in Romans 9:22-23 this could alternately be interpreted as we are free from the sin of existence because we were created from an urge to exist or an "accident". The vessels of wrath could be the dimensions of evil or Qlippoth created from the manifestation of free will, God enduring so that we may experience the vessels of mercy or second glory being the alchemical alignment of life or completion of the great work when our existence through peace and self contemplation mirrors the perfection of the pleroma manifest on the physical plane.
