Pelosi seemingly has an expectation of Plausible Deniability when it comes to conjecture about her role in the siege at the capitol Jan 6 2021. We suggest otherwise~

Saul Loeb-remember this name.

(first, a personal comment from an Anon:)

What I know so far...

The smphony of International Media Liaisons playing through concerted efforts to ring True the global deception of the “siege” at the U S Capitol Building is staggering. It is reminiscent of the 2020 Covid Phenom. Ten days ago a coalition of truth lovers began conducting separate methodical open-sourced investigations into “THE CAPITOL RIOTS”, amid the cacophony occurring across the aisle in the US Congress, wafting down its hallowed halls, seeping out across America and carried world-wide on a hot air of deception easily blown into the minds and hearts of the world populations. It is a Lie, designed to relegate Truth and Facts to an annoying background score mindlessly humming against an intentional deception seemingly impossible to end in time to save our American Freedom or our Nation from this Global abomination.

These Free and Open investigations are occurring because everyday people know that a Tragedy of Justice in America has been vacuumed up into a chorus of lies blasting this Orchestrated Sedition relentlessly against the diminishing sounds of our Constitutional Republic which binds Americans together in a common acceptance of our God-given right to Life, to Liberty, and to The Pursuit of Happiness.

It appears to Rational Human Beings that our Constitution has irretrievably perished at the hand of cacophony spewed from ill-timed half-notes and quarter-tones, bleated from lecterns and microphones and hand-scribbled notes, edited together from curated cyber-posts contaminating the known universe conducted in graffiti-like tagging by the worst yet most prolific among us: the tone-deaf megaphone wielders with no Vision beyond Destruction, and no accountability for their lack of it. The world, and particularly America, has been drenched in this flood of fiction pretending to be music and harmony and solemn prayerful Justice. It is all a lie.

This cesspool is the reality into which I tenuously wade. The waters are chilling, bone-numbing, and yet these waters stand as the only possible conduit for the glorious music of Freedom and Liberty and Justice that is yet to come. Yet because I was born into a God-Fearing Nation, a nation created freely on Judeo-Christian concepts of Peace and Law and Resurrection, I understand the chill of the waters, the graying of the skies, the din of destruction playing in the air around me, and strike out unafraid along with hundreds of millions of other Souls straining to hear the truth among these evil Songs of Sedition Gaslit Insurgence and Treason playing to capture me and swallow me in their evil wake.

Not going to happen, not this time...Here endeth the Poet's lament

(another Anon chimes in...)

Here's what I know:

I can list specific sources of information working in concert to spread the lies designed to topple our nation and install an alternative World Government in its place. And I will.

I can show you how, in their arrogance and their greed and their unbridled machinations against us, the Would-Be-Powerful in our suffering Nation's Government, are complicit in the terrible evil that has befallen us. And I will.

I can show you how you, too, were conscripted into this Army of Destruction and now unwittingly participate in your own destruction as well as mine, knowing that had you Loved me as I have Loved you, an awakening within your soul would have taught you my Vision is the Truth of our shared God: while your eyes saw a lie, and your ears absorbed a dangerous lullaby which was flawed, and you slept while my lips whispered the truth to you, yet in your unconsciousness you sought to silence me instead. I can show you how there is now no reconciling between us: you have chosen the sleep of lullabies and I have chosen the wakefulness of truth..I can do nothing but waken you with it.

And I will.

Okay, then let's begin with the particular assemblage of Facts and Truth, bound within this photograph below of the Office of the speaker of the House having been desecrated with a Hate-Speech note written by an Insurrectionist who sullied her office.., shall we?

Let's start with the burning Q, What Is on Pelosi's Desk?

@APBenven in the "More on the Italian Job"/ Italian Job 2 piece.)

Here's what I have learned in the last 11 days....that is NEW to me... having been researching the government's lies goals and deceptions for several years consciously.

1. The day before the Rally, tour busses arrived at the capitol Building despite it being closed to tourists due to the Pandemic. Photog evidence of the arrival of these busses is no longer in the Public Domain. Several lawmakers are asserting this fact however.
2. The night before the Rally, a small collection of campers' tents were seen occupied at the Capitol Building Grounds. Eyewitness recounting.
3. No global information or notice went out that Air B&B units would be closed for the duration of the Rally events nor the weekends before or after. This publicized notice is now in play for the Inauguration occurring in 3 days, however.
4. Not unlike Benghazi, there were initially multiple personal accounts by Law Enforcement of having sought increased security; calls for which went unanswered by the Democrat Leaders in the Nation's Capital.
5. The weather on Rally Day was in the 40's; people began arriving at the venue where POTUS would speak as early as pre-6 AM.
6. POTUS was scheduled to speak to his citizens on Rally Day at 11:00 AM. Several spoke before he did. Potus arrived late, it was an hour later when he stood before his people and addressed them. He spoke for just under an hour.
7. There were at least a million people in attendance at his speech, a location 45 minutes' walk from the Capitol Building. The Trump Supporters did not begin to move from witnessing the POTUS address until after 1PM.
8. Patriots stood waiting for Trump in 45 degree chilling weather for hours, until he arrived mid-day and spoke; his speech ended and the 45 minute march to the Capitol Building began no earlier than 1 PM

(below pic source <https://www.businessinsider.com/photos-trump-and-supporters-rally-against-certification-of-election-2021-1#thousands-of-supporters-of-trump-descended-on-washington-after-trump-in-tweets-had-encouraged-them-to-come-1>) Apparently a coordinated blast of tweets went out at 12:15 – 12:30..had POTUS kept to his scheduled 11am start time, that would have been 15 mins past the ETA of "the mob" they'd planned on hijacking from the Rally. In fact, the rally had begun around noon and went on an hour or more. It's a 45 min walk then to the Capitol Building.

Some media anchors that day commented it was "rude" by DC standard for Pence to begin his speech in congress before Trump had finished his speech before the one million plus assembled Citizens..

Perhaps not rude, but Imperative that {Pence begin when he did to adhere to the pre-planned timeline imposed on the Agent Provocateurs

Source: President Donald Trump, Twitter

..POTUS's Account DELETED:edict of Twitter CEO Jack Dorsey. (& see Ralph Notham 12:29 pm tweet also..CNN is claiming this all occurred at 3:30 pm now...invoking PST vs EST.)

9. Eyewitness accounts of the Rally and March and subsequent fate of Trump Supporters in attendance was well documented on social media especially via Twitter in real-time. The majority of the accounts carrying this information to the public have been closed by Twitter and the content of these posts Removed.
10. These eyewitness accounts 1,2,4,&9 above are no longer available online. Possibly the point in closing TRUMPs twitter was to smokescreen the fact that it's not Conservatives but EYEWITNESSES and users in possession of accounts of EYEWITNESSES who are being banned. It's Fascism at its finest.
11. There are highly suspicious tweets from other/Democrat accounts that are Still Active: real-time records that were included in News accounts which were logged and preserved:
 - a. Social Media posts complaining about Trump Supporters Violently Clashing with LE; gunfire sent before 3pm;

- b. Accounts of smoke bombs; rioting, etc. sent before 2pm
 - c. All of which are recorded on Twitter as having been launched, in fact, before the Trump Supporters In Reality had ever begun their 45 minute march to the Capitol Building.
12. The entry 11. Above illustrates coordination between Agent Provocateurs “storming the Capitol Building” and those “Handling” them, informing Social Media of the impact of their pre-arrival and mayhem, as well as dressing them to easily be identified as “trump Supporters”, ideally suited to Photo Ops.
13. One particular Photographer had Multiple Bylines for the photographs used both in the 12-1 pm timeframe of reporting the “conflict” as well as after the 1:45-2:15 pm arrival (thru the front)of actual Rally Goers who were invited in, seen reverently walking between theatre ribbon red velvet restraints. See my companion piece: “More on the Italian Job including Sam Loeb”
14. That photographer is assigned by the French Press AFP to the White House. Despite Trump’s pending Speech and the highly publicized Rally, this person chose instead to be at the joint session Elector Vote in the Chambers of Congress and somehow was able to wander around the building into various Office rooms, including the Office of the Speaker of the House, randomly photographing “the insurrection” well in advance of the arrival of any Real rally-goers.. Recall the Roger Stone arrest, where CNN was there and ready, before the FBI hit squad ever arrived to dramatically ram the front door and arrest him at gunpoint a la Fascist Gestapo Tactics.
15. Many of this person’s photographs were already licensed to Getty Images by the time they began reappearing online later that day. In fact SEVERAL Getty Image notices appear on tweeted photos of the events at the Capitol Building.
16. There is a photograph of a “note” scrawled, allegedly by an Insurgent Trump Supporter Terrorist, on the back of a manila file folder in red ink, which was a close –up of a desk taken in the office of Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi. There is also a post-it note reading: “Distribute flags Jan 4th” Also there is a stack of “floor access” passes for June 6th on her desk. Despite the Elector Count Process already having being in session when the Agent Provocateurs “took over”, storming the House Chamber.
17. THESE photographs, of Pelosi’s desk referenced above & the distance from the Venue to the Capital Bldg, are going to serve as my own personal “launch pad” into recounting for you my investigating the involvement of the Democrat Speaker of the House in these events which led her 6 days later to impeach Potus for a second time based solely on the “Capitol Bldg Siege” by “Terrorist Trump Supporters” asserting POTUS is “guilty of insurrection and is also subject to Article 25 removal which VP Pence has refused to invoke, leaving me no choice but to impeach.”

Immediate Action – In which Speaker Pelosi launches the Impeachment Delusion off of a “riot” she’s complicit in orchestrating?

Background Note on Pelosi:

REMEMBER: Nancy Pelosi arrogantly and defiantly, (psychotically?) publically destroyed the Official Copy Of Record of the President of the United States’ historic State of the Union address, an act televised by every traditional Media outlet worldwide. By the time Pelosi does this, it is apparent in retrospect that the CCP had already been enlisted to assist the Democrat Party with fixing the 2020 election against Trump, a Paid concentrated deception which had failed in 2016 when Trump was elected by the people, in an historic Landslide. Pelosi acts in Strength of Communist China’s backing... this may have been an act by Pelosi to definitively solidify to governments / dictators/communist fascists’ world wide the “American Commitment” to overthrowing President Trump, and letting all know China was on board now as well.

Nancy Pelosi puts out a smear then basically explains its use as a "wrap up smear a political tactic". And also has the temerity to say "I'm not disrespectful of peoples views" and "the difference is we don't participate in the politics of personal destruction". Quite the sham.

Pelosi seemingly has an expectation of Plausible Deniability when it comes to conjecture about her role in the siege at the capitol Jan 6 2021. We suggest otherwise~

The day before Impeaching Trump for Insurrection based on the 1/6/21 capitol bldg. "siege", Speaker Pelosi was seen in a video clip carried in a politico article, answering allegations that there were tours given the day before the Storming of the Rotunda/Capitol Bld, suggesting perhaps those were a level of "reconnaissance Exercise" <https://www.politico.com/news/2021/01/14/lawmakers-capitol-attackers-legal-459519>

That suggestion actually comes from a letter by Rep Sherrill, here is the link to that letter: 📄2020.01.13 Sherrill Letter to USCP and SAA.pdf

Dear Mr. Blodgett, Ms. Hemmingway, and Acting Chief Pittman:

We write today to request an immediate investigation into the suspicious behavior and access given to visitors to the Capitol Complex on Tuesday, January 5, 2021 - the day before the attacks on the Capitol.

Many of the Members who signed this letter, including those of us who have served in the military and are trained to recognize suspicious activity, as well as various members of our staff, witnessed an extremely high number of outside groups in the complex on Tuesday, January 5. This is unusual for several reasons, including the fact that access to the Capitol Complex has been restricted since public tours ended in March of last year due to the pandemic.

The tours being conducted on Tuesday, January 5, were a noticeable and concerning departure from the procedures in place as of March 2020 that limited the number of visitors to the Capitol. These tours were so concerning that they were reported to the Sergeant at Arms on January 5.

The visitors encountered by some of the Members of Congress on this letter appeared to be associated with the rally at the White House the following day. That group left the White House and marched to the Capitol with the objective of preventing Congress from certifying our election. Members of the group that attacked the Capitol seemed to have an unusually detailed knowledge of the layout of the Capitol Complex. The presence of these groups within the Capitol Complex was indeed suspicious. Given the events of January 6, the ties between these groups inside the Capitol Complex and the attacks on the Capitol need to be investigated.

Dear Mr. Blodgett, Ms. Hemmingway, and Acting Chief Pittman:

We write today to request an immediate investigation into the suspicious behavior and access given to visitors to the Capitol Complex on Tuesday, January 5, 2021 - the day before the attacks on the Capitol.

Many of the Members who signed this letter, including those of us who have served in the military and are trained to recognize suspicious activity, as well as various members of our staff, witnessed an extremely high number of outside groups in the complex on Tuesday, January 5. This is unusual for several reasons, including the fact that access to the Capitol Complex has been restricted since public tours ended in March of last year due to the pandemic.

The tours being conducted on Tuesday, January 5, were a noticeable and concerning departure from the procedures in place as of March 2020 that limited the number of visitors to the Capitol. These tours were so concerning that they were reported to the Sergeant at Arms on January 5.

The visitors encountered by some of the Members of Congress on this letter appeared to be associated with the rally at the White House the following day.

That group left the White House and marched to the Capitol with the objective of preventing Congress from certifying our election. Members of the group that attacked the Capitol seemed to have an unusually detailed knowledge of the layout of the Capitol Complex. The presence of these groups within the Capitol Complex was indeed suspicious. Given the events of January 6, the ties between these groups inside the Capitol Complex and the attacks on the Capitol need to be investigated.

It is important that we feel safe in the halls of Congress, and we applaud the Sergeant at Arms (SAA) and U.S. Capitol Police (USCP) for their efforts. But the fact remains that there were unusually large groups of people throughout the Capitol who could only have gained access to the Capitol Complex from a Member of Congress or a member of their staff.

To that end, please provide answers to the following questions:

1. Are logbooks of Capitol Complex visitors inspected regularly and collected in any type of database?
 1. Do additional law enforcement agencies have access to that database?
 2. Does SAA/USCP track visitors by Member?
 3. Does SAA/USCP ask for ID from visitors?
 4. If yes, will SAA/USCP provide the information, including names of Members or staff who were part of these tours?
2. Does SAA/USCP enforce Members signing in guests?
 1. Does SAA/USCP have logs of which Members signed guests in on 1/5/21?
 2. If yes, will SAA/USCP provide the information, including names of Members or staff who were part of these tours?
3. Have any additional law enforcement agencies requested access to these logs?
4. What would prevent the SAA/USCP from permitting a visitor from entering the building?
5. What tracking does the SAA/USCP employ to ensure that one staffer did not bring more than their allotted "official visitors" through multiple entrances?
6. Are there video logs of the day in question?
 1. If Yes, will SAA/USCP provide the video logs?

7. Is facial recognition software used for visitors entering the complex?
 1. If Yes, will SAA/USCP provide the facial recognition results?

8. Are any of the individuals recorded in the Capitol complex on January 5 being investigated for their role in the insurrection the following day?

We appreciate your immediate attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

The Pentagon says Trump authorized the National Guard deployment days before the protest, but the timeline does not say what that entailed

On Sunday, Jan. 3, Miller and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Mark Milley, met with Trump. According to the memo, the president “concur[s] in activation” of the National Guard to “support law enforcement.” Miller approved the activation of 340 Guard members the following day.

Washington's mayor and the Pentagon offer conflicting accounts of the lead-up to the protests

After Bowser sent her New Year's Eve request for help from the D.C. National Guard, the DOD memo says it approved sending 340 Guard members to support local officials. It further says that on Tuesday, Bowser delivered a letter confirming that Washington officials had all the support they needed.

But a spokesperson for Bowser's office told NBC News that it was McCarthy, not the mayor, who made the key decisions about the National Guard's response, including setting the number of personnel and establishing "that the guard members were not to move East of 9th Street NW," blocks away from the Capitol itself.

Kathryn Walt Hall is the proprietor of HALL Wines and WALT Wines, and has been involved in the California wine industry since her family first purchased a vineyard in the 1970's. She is a New York Times Bestselling Author of A Perfect Score, and has had a distinguished career as a successful businesswoman, attorney, and community activist. From 1998 to 2001 she served as the United States Ambassador to Austria.

Kathryn and her brother managed the family vineyard from 1982 to 1992, selling grapes to other wineries, as well as producing Sauvignon Blanc and Cabernet Sauvignon under the label WALT Vineyards. Kathryn began her public career as assistant city attorney in Berkeley, California. Later, she joined Safeway Stores, where she was responsible for developing and administering one of the nation's first and largest affirmative action programs. Subsequently, she worked as an attorney and businesswoman in Dallas, Texas, where she was president of an inner city development company and partner of Hall Financial Group, Inc.

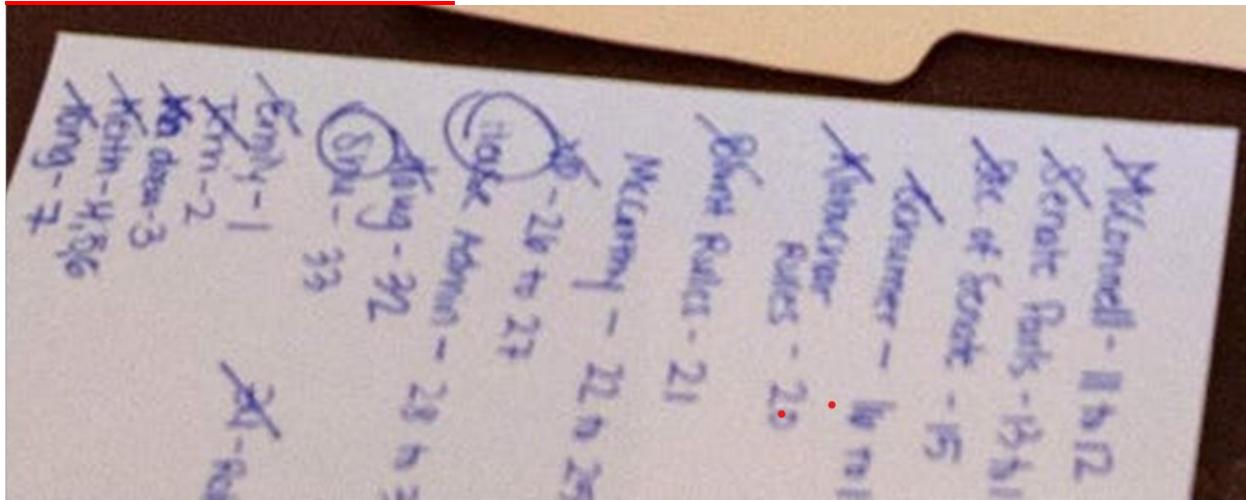

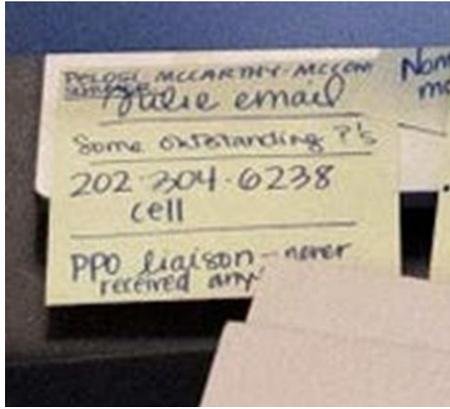

Long committed to social issues, Kathryn has served on numerous non-profit and institutional boards, addressing issues related to social care and mental health. She co-founded the North Texas Food Bank, served on the U.S. House of Representatives Hunger Advisory Committee, and was the director/vice president of the Texas Mental Health Association. Kathryn has served on the National Advisory Council for Violence Against Women and as a trustee of the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars.

From 1998 to 2001, Kathryn served as the United States Ambassador to Austria. Since her return to America, she has resumed her role as proprietor of HALL Wines along with her husband Craig. Continuing upon her experience promoting American agriculture in Austria, in September 2001 she was appointed to the United States Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Technical Advisory Committee (ATAC) for International Trade and to Texas One, promoting international investment in Texas.

Kathryn serves on the Napa Legal Aid Board, the Board of Directors of Festival Napa, and is a Trustee of the Southwestern Medical Center. She is fluent in French and German, earned a B.A.

in Economics from the University of California, Berkeley, a joint MBA from UC California, Berkeley & Columbia University and a J.D. from the University of California, Hastings College of Law. Together with her husband Craig, they have four children.

A new senior leader at the White House personnel office: A college senior www.politico.com

2 mins read

The director of the personnel office, John McEntee, has installed a young, loyal aide as he evaluates the loyalty of officials across the administration.

Bacon will be PPO's director of operations overseeing paperwork and will assist on vetting. The role was previously filled by Katja Bullock, who is in her late 70s and was a veteran of the office in both Bush administrations, as well as the Reagan administration.

The White House has not yet sent around any formal internal notice of Bacon's new role. A White House spokesman declined to comment.

McEntee replaced Sean Doocey, who is heading to the State Department.

McEntee, 29, held a meeting in a conference room in the Eisenhower Executive Office Building last Thursday with White House liaisons of Cabinet departments where he asked officials to find Trump appointees who may be anti-

Trump, according to an administration official familiar with the meeting. McEntee also told them that PPO was going to take a look at all appointees at some point and re-vet them to see if they've been disloyal in any way.

More dramatic changes are likely to be delayed until after November but the agency liaisons have been told to stop moving around officials who are viewed as anti-Trump to other agencies. (Axios first reported the details of the meeting.)

Another administration official described the meeting as “very positive” and McEntee reassured colleagues that there won't be delays even though some PPO officials are leaving.

At least during his transition into the office, McEntee has for now kept on Michael Burley, who is associate director of presidential personnel and a special assistant to the president, but Burley is trying to figure out his next steps if he decides to leave.

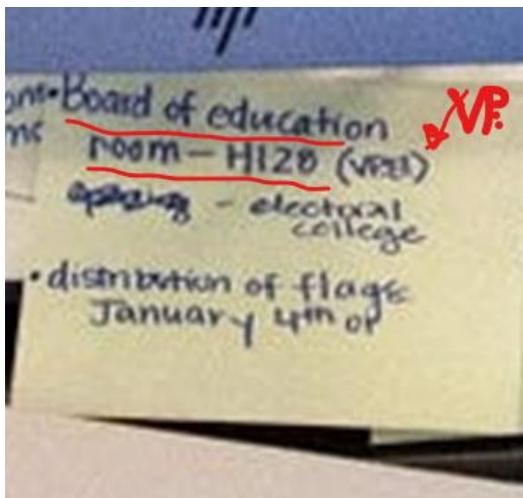

After his acquittal, the president — emboldened and increasingly skeptical of anyone not a part of his original team — has relied on people like McEntee to act on his unofficial edict to fill the White House with loyalists and get rid of anyone feared to be part of the “deep state.”

McEntee worked on the Trump campaign in 2016 as the president's body man, and in his role at the White House had constant access to the president, flying with him on Marine One and Air Force One, and at the president's side to assist with any needs. He was fired from his role in 2018 by former chief of staff John Kelly because of security concerns tied to gambling allegations.

But McEntee wanted to return to the White House and is trusted by Trump, his family, and senior staff, was brought back earlier this year as the president is about to head into a reelection year and personnel changes are expected at the White House.

Despite having the trust of the president, McEntee's lack of experience has raised concerns among some White House staff about his ability to run a critical White House office. One White House official pointed out that loyalty, in this case, trumped age and experience.

May 15, 2012 · After Rayburn died in 1963, the Board of Education Room remained in control of the Speaker. Use of the room, however, declined over the years as additional space was given to new Speakers. However between the tenures of Speaker’s Nicholas Longworth and Sam Rayburn, H-128 was a favorite hangout and watering hole for Members of Congress.

Quote from theabove: “H-128 is a pretty awesome room. If you ever read Speaker Tip O’Neill’s Man of the House or any biography of Speaker Sam Rayburn, you’ll notice that room comes up in a lot of fun and interesting stories. H-128 served many purposes, such as the room for the Journal Clerk, a room for the Committee on Elections and there were other House Committee's that met there from time to time. However, the room has since been used (and is currently controlled by) the Speaker of the House, ... Both Longworth and Garner used this room to 'instruct' and 'educate' freshmen Members on how to vote on a particular bill and engage in drinking bouts with friends. This first floor hideaway the Speaker used is located at the bottom of the marble staircase that leads to the Speaker's lobby on the second floor of the Capitol."

The small room tucked away on the first floor of the Capitol became famous in the 20th century as the “Board of Education,” where House leaders met to relax and share information and strategy. The space was part of the 1857 extension of the Capitol, and the Committee on Territories claimed it first, but Speakers of the House have used it since the turn of the 20th century.

A Room for Speakers

The Speaker of the House took over the future Board of Education in 1901. For many Speakers, it offered an escape from their public offices near the House Chamber. Tucked away on a narrow corridor, close to storage rooms and the barbershop, the little room had a relatively low profile. Speaker Henry Rainey liked to work there “unbothered by job hunters and self-appointed advice givers,” according to the newspapers. Speaker Jack Garner used it as a second home. Ettie—his wife, secretary, and close advisor—cooked his meals there on a stove especially installed for them.

View Larger

Collection of the U.S. House of Representatives

About this object Ettie and Jack Garner were a powerful pair during the latter's three decades in the House. Ettie served as his secretary and cooked his lunch every day in the Board of Education.

Speaker William Bankhead gave the room to Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, beginning the space's most storied era as Rayburn's hideaway during his long Speakership. Soon the room took on the name it is still known by today—the Board of Education. Party leaders met to drink, quiz selected House Members on political matters, and plot legislative strategy. In a different spot in the Capitol Speaker Nicholas Longworth pioneered the custom, and the name, of the convivial retreat, but it was Rayburn who most famously used it as a political tool. His ability to gather new and seasoned Representatives in the Board of Education, serving them bourbon while he gathered information and issued tactical marching orders, was the stuff of lore. Although Rayburn made the Board of Education legendary, he never referred to it that way, calling it simply “the little room” downstairs from the House Chamber.

Rayburn's Influence

Rayburn outfitted the room with shabby, comfortable furniture—old “Turkish” tufted chairs, a long leather couch, threadbare carpet, and a big desk that had drawers jammed with bottles of bourbon and Scotch. Rayburn had the Texas seal painted on the west wall of the room, and below it he placed two stanchions holding the U.S. flag and the Lone Star banner carried by the Texas Delegation at the 1932 Democratic National Convention. He also hung two portraits: his official Speaker’s portrait and a rendering of Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas.

The small circle of regulars who joined Rayburn to “strike a blow for liberty”—as Garner called their tumblers of liquor in the days of Prohibition—included longtime House Parliamentarian Lewis Deschler, Representative Lyndon Johnson of Texas, and a few committee chairs. Senator, and later Vice President, Harry Truman was another frequent visitor. Truman was relaxing with Rayburn and friends when President Franklin Roosevelt died. The Capitol switchboard patched the White House’s urgent call to the Board of Education. Truman went pale, muttered “Jesus Christ and General Jackson,” and grabbed his hat as he rushed out the door to assume the presidency.

Pelosi says Congress should "proceed tonight at the Capitol once it is cleared for use"

In a letter to colleagues on Wednesday evening, Pelosi condemned the "shameful" riots in the Capitol and said she believed Congress should proceed with tallying Electoral College votes once the Capitol is secured.

"Today, a shameful assault was made on our democracy. It was anointed at the highest level of government. It cannot, however, deter us from our responsibility to validate the election of Joe Biden," Pelosi said. "To that end, in consultation with Leader Hoyer and Whip Clyburn and after calls to the Pentagon, the Justice Department and the Vice President, we have decided we should proceed tonight at the Capitol once it is cleared for use. Leader Hoyer will be sending out more guidance later today."

Pelosi also expressed hope that "this instigation to violence will provide an epiphany for our country to heal."

"We always knew this responsibility would take us into the night. The night may still be long but we are hopeful for a shorter agenda, but our purpose will be accomplished," Pelosi said. "We also knew that we would be a part of history in a positive way, today, despite ill-founded objections to the Electoral College vote. We now will be part of history, as such a shameful picture of our country was put out to the world, instigated at the highest level."

The rioters came to Washington, DC, Wednesday to protest as part of the "Stop the Steal" movement, which is named for Trump's baseless claims of widespread fraud in the election. Their actions were condemned by both Democrats and Republicans. Trump had previously encouraged his followers to come to Washington to protect the certification of the election results.

President-elect Joe Biden on Wednesday called the mob of Trump supporters a "violent siege" and an "insurrection," urging for calm amid the chaos.

In a joint statement with Senate Minority Leader Chuck Schumer, Pelosi said she was "calling on President Trump to demand that all protesters leave the US Capitol and Capitol Grounds immediately."

Texas Sen. Ted Cruz, a Republican leading the effort to object to the certification of the election results in the Senate, tweeted: "Those storming the Capitol need to stop NOW."

And in a video posted on Twitter, Trump urged his followers to leave the Capitol and head home, though he repeated his baseless accusations about the 2020 election.

ALEX EDELMAN/AFP/Getty Images

There's no other word but terrifying. On Jan. 6, rioters stormed the U.S. Capitol Building in Washington D.C. after President Donald Trump delivered a rally speech where he claimed, once again without evidence, that the November 2020 election was stolen from him. As police failed to hold back crowds, some Trump supporters forced their way into the building. These tweets from the U.S. Capitol during the attempted coup are a frightening read, and show the disturbing perspective on the ground.

While information is still coming out, the initial details from those present are frightening. Around 1 p.m. ET, rioters reportedly entered the Capitol and forced their way into the chambers where legislators were confirming the election of President-elect Joe Biden. Legislators and those inside the Capitol were reportedly instructed to shelter in place, per multiple accounts. The White House did not immediately respond to Elite Daily's request for comment regarding the situation and President Trump's influence on events.

Terrifying photos and videos showed glimpses of the events inside the Capitol building, including security with guns pointed at rioters and legislators and congressional staff crouching beneath chairs and desks in the legislative chambers. Many members of Congress and those present tweeted out what they were seeing.

According to live reports from The Washington Post, the national guard will be activated, and at least one person has been shot inside the building. According to a Jan. 6, 1:31 p.m. tweet from Complex's Steven Nelson, there appeared to be some type of gas in the Capitol building entryway.

As of Jan. 6, there's no evidence Trump directly or intentionally incited his supporters to riot. However, he's received criticism in the past for failing to condemn certain right-wing militia groups, such as the Proud Boys. In fact, in September 2020, Trump directly addressed the Proud Boys, telling them to "stand back and stand by" during the first presidential debate, and many Americans interpreted his words as a cryptic message for the future should he lose to Biden in the presidential election — which, he did. The Trump 2020 campaign did not respond to Elite Daily's request for comment at the time.

Since then, Trump has refused to concede the election, and has only seemed to drift further and further away from reality as he continues to make baseless claims about election fraud on nearly every public platform he can. His supporters have already stormed the Capitol, so who knows what might happen next between now and Biden's inauguration on Jan. 20? Hopefully, it won't be more of this.

 I am safe. We are sheltering in place. Make no mistake President Trump and his enablers are directly responsible for this violence.

 Have faith. These terrorists will fail. They will be brought to justice. Their enablers will be brought to justice. If the President and his allies have any shred of honor left, they will tell these thugs to stand down now.

Pelosi seemingly has an expectation of Plausible Deniability when it comes to conjecture about her role in the siege at the capitol Jan 6 2021. We attempt to suggest otherwise~

The day before Impeaching Trump for Insurrection based on the 1/6/21 capitol bldg. "siege", Speaker Pelosi was seen in a video clip carried in a politico article, answering allegations that there were tours given the day before the Storming of the Rotunda/Capitol Bld, suggesting perhaps those were a level of "reconnaissance Exercise" <https://www.politico.com/news/2021/01/14/lawmakers-capitol-attackers-legal-459519>

That suggestion actually comes from a letter by Rep Sherrill, here is the link to that letter: 📄2020.01.13_Sherrill Letter to USCP and SAA.pdf

And below is a paste of the text of that letter from this site:

Dear Mr. Blodgett, Ms. Hemmingway, and Acting Chief Pittman:

We write today to request an immediate investigation into the suspicious behavior and access given to visitors to the Capitol Complex on Tuesday, January 5, 2021 - the day before the attacks on the Capitol.

Many of the Members who signed this letter, including those of us who have served in the military and are trained to recognize suspicious activity, as well as various members of our staff, witnessed an extremely high number of outside groups in the complex on Tuesday, January 5. This is unusual for several reasons, including the fact that access to the Capitol Complex has been restricted since public tours ended in March of last year due to the pandemic.

The tours being conducted on Tuesday, January 5, were a noticeable and concerning departure from the procedures in place as of March 2020 that limited the number of visitors to the Capitol. These tours were so concerning that they were reported to the Sergeant at Arms on January 5.

The visitors encountered by some of the Members of Congress on this letter appeared to be associated with the rally at the White House the following day. That group left the White House and marched to the Capitol with the objective of preventing Congress from certifying our election. Members of the group that attacked the Capitol seemed to have an unusually detailed knowledge of the layout of the Capitol Complex. The presence of these groups within the Capitol Complex was indeed suspicious. Given the events of January 6, the ties between these groups inside the Capitol Complex and the attacks on the Capitol need to be investigated.

Dear Mr. Blodgett, Ms. Hemmingway, and Acting Chief Pittman:

We write today to request an immediate investigation into the suspicious behavior and access given to visitors to the Capitol Complex on Tuesday, January 5, 2021 - the day before the attacks on the Capitol.

Many of the Members who signed this letter, including those of us who have served in the military and are trained to recognize suspicious activity, as well as various members of our staff, witnessed an extremely high number of outside groups in the complex on Tuesday, January 5. This is unusual for several reasons, including the fact that access to the Capitol Complex has been restricted since public tours ended in March of last year due to the pandemic.

The tours being conducted on Tuesday, January 5, were a noticeable and concerning departure from the procedures in place as of March 2020 that limited the number of visitors to the Capitol. These tours were so concerning that they were reported to the Sergeant at Arms on January 5.

The visitors encountered by some of the Members of Congress on this letter appeared to be associated with the rally at the White House the following day.

That group left the White House and marched to the Capitol with the objective of preventing Congress from certifying our election. Members of the group that attacked the Capitol seemed to have an unusually detailed knowledge of the layout of the Capitol Complex. The presence of these groups within the Capitol Complex was indeed suspicious. Given the events of January 6, the ties between these groups inside the Capitol Complex and the attacks on the Capitol need to be investigated.

It is important that we feel safe in the halls of Congress, and we applaud the Sergeant at Arms (SAA) and U.S. Capitol Police (USCP) for their efforts. But the fact remains that there were unusually large groups of people throughout the Capitol who could only have gained access to the Capitol Complex from a Member of Congress or a member of their staff.

To that end, please provide answers to the following questions:

1. Are logbooks of Capitol Complex visitors inspected regularly and collected in any type of database?
 1. Do additional law enforcement agencies have access to that database?
 2. Does SAA/USCP track visitors by Member?
 3. Does SAA/USCP ask for ID from visitors?
 4. If yes, will SAA/USCP provide the information, including names of Members or staff who were part of these tours?
2. Does SAA/USCP enforce Members signing in guests?
 1. Does SAA/USCP have logs of which Members signed guests in on 1/5/21?
 2. If yes, will SAA/USCP provide the information, including names of Members or staff who were part of these tours?
3. Have any additional law enforcement agencies requested access to these logs?
4. What would prevent the SAA/USCP from permitting a visitor from entering the building?
5. What tracking does the SAA/USCP employ to ensure that one staffer did not bring more than their allotted "official visitors" through multiple entrances?
6. Are there video logs of the day in question?
 1. If Yes, will SAA/USCP provide the video logs?

7. Is facial recognition software used for visitors entering the complex?
 1. If Yes, will SAA/USCP provide the facial recognition results?

8. Are any of the individuals recorded in the Capitol complex on January 5 being investigated for their role in the insurrection the following day?

We appreciate your immediate attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

The Pentagon says Trump authorized the National Guard deployment days before the protest, but the timeline does not say what that entailed

On Sunday, Jan. 3, Miller and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Mark Milley, met with Trump. According to the memo, the president “concur[s] in activation” of the National Guard to “support law enforcement.” Miller approved the activation of 340 Guard members the following day.

Washington's mayor and the Pentagon offer conflicting accounts of the lead-up to the protests

After Bowser sent her New Year's Eve request for help from the D.C. National Guard, the DOD memo says it approved sending 340 Guard members to support local officials. It further says that on Tuesday, Bowser delivered a letter confirming that Washington officials had all the support they needed.

But a spokesperson for Bowser's office told NBC News that it was McCarthy, not the mayor, who made the key decisions about the National Guard's response, including setting the number of personnel and establishing "that the guard members were not to move East of 9th Street NW," blocks away from the Capitol itself.

- A pro-Trump mob on Wednesday stormed the US Capitol as part of its "Stop the Steal" protest that baselessly alleged President-elect Joe Biden's win was the result of widespread voter fraud.
- Some rioters entered the office of Rep. Nancy Pelosi, who was elected this week to another term as the speaker of the House.
- CNN first reported that a person had left a threatening note for Pelosi, which said: "WE WILL NOT BACK DOWN."
- There have been bipartisan calls for those who stormed the Capitol to leave the building and follow the instructions of authorities.

An ominous note was left for House Speaker Nancy Pelosi in her office Wednesday after rioters in support of President Donald Trump stormed the US Capitol building as lawmakers were discussing the certification of the 2020 election results.

CNN first reported the existence of the note, which was left on a desk in Pelosi's office atop a computer keyboard. The note was written on a manila folder in red ink.

"WE WILL NOT BACK DOWN," the note said.

The New York Times reported Pelosi's office was vandalized by some of the president's supporters who mobbed the Capitol on Wednesday. Congress was forced to abruptly enter recess. Vandals ripped photos off the wall and flipped furniture in the house speaker's office, according to The Times.

The director of the personnel office, John McEntee, has installed a young, loyal aide as he evaluates the loyalty of officials across the administration.

Bacon will be PPO's director of operations overseeing paperwork and will assist on vetting. The role was previously filled by Katja Bullock, who is in her late 70s and was a veteran of the office in both Bush administrations, as well as the Reagan administration.

The White House has not yet sent around any formal internal notice of Bacon's new role. A White House spokesman declined to comment.

McEntee replaced Sean Dooney, who is heading to the State Department.

McEntee, 29, held a meeting in a conference room in the Eisenhower Executive Office Building last Thursday with White House liaisons of Cabinet departments where he asked officials to find Trump appointees who may be anti-

Trump, according to an administration official familiar with the meeting. McEntee also told them that PPO was going to take a look at all appointees at some point and re-vet them to see if they've been disloyal in any way.

More dramatic changes are likely to be delayed until after November but the agency liaisons have been told to stop moving around officials who are viewed as anti-Trump to other agencies. (Axios first reported the details of the meeting.)

Another administration official described the meeting as “very positive” and McEntee reassured colleagues that there won't be delays even though some PPO officials are leaving.

At least during his transition into the office, McEntee has for now kept on Michael Burley, who is associate director of presidential personnel and a special assistant to the president, but Burley is trying to figure out his next steps if he decides to leave.

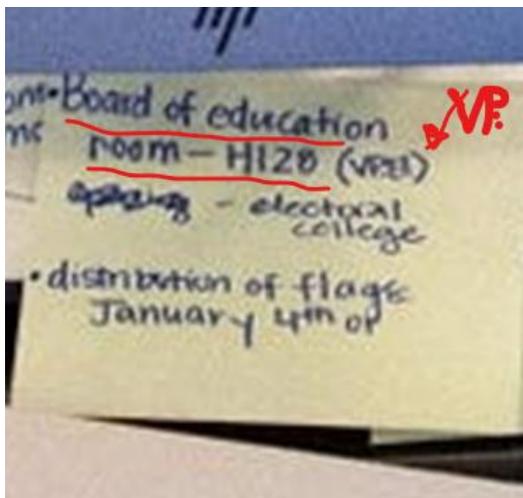

After his acquittal, the president — emboldened and increasingly skeptical of anyone not a part of his original team — has relied on people like McEntee to act on his unofficial edict to fill the White House with loyalists and get rid of anyone feared to be part of the “deep state.”

McEntee worked on the Trump campaign in 2016 as the president's body man, and in his role at the White House had constant access to the president, flying with him on Marine One and Air Force One, and at the president's side to assist with any needs. He was fired from his role in 2018 by former chief of staff John Kelly because of security concerns tied to gambling allegations.

But McEntee wanted to return to the White House and is trusted by Trump, his family, and senior staff, was brought back earlier this year as the president is about to head into a reelection year and personnel changes are expected at the White House.

Despite having the trust of the president, McEntee's lack of experience has raised concerns among some White House staff about his ability to run a critical White House office. One White House official pointed out that loyalty, in this case, trumped age and experience.

May 15, 2012 · After Rayburn died in 1963, the Board of Education Room remained in control of the Speaker. Use of the room, however, declined over the years as additional space was given to new Speakers. However between the tenures of Speaker’s Nicholas Longworth and Sam Rayburn, H-128 was a favorite hangout and watering hole for Members of Congress.

Quote from theabove: “H-128 is a pretty awesome room. If you ever read Speaker Tip O’Neill’s Man of the House or any biography of Speaker Sam Rayburn, you’ll notice that room comes up in a lot of fun and interesting stories. H-128 served many purposes, such as the room for the Journal Clerk, a room for the Committee on Elections and there were other House Committee's that met there from time to time. However, the room has since been used (and is currently controlled by) the Speaker of the House, ... Both Longworth and Garner used this room to 'instruct' and 'educate' freshmen Members on how to vote on a particular bill and engage in drinking bouts with friends. The small room tucked away on the first floor of the Capitol became famous in the 20th century as the “Board of Education,” where House leaders met to relax and share information and strategy. The space was part of the 1857 extension of the Capitol, and the Committee on Territories claimed it first, but Speakers of the House have used it since the turn of the 20th century.

A Room for Speakers

The Speaker of the House took over the future Board of Education in 1901. For many Speakers, it offered an escape from their public offices near the House Chamber. Tucked away on a narrow corridor, close to storage rooms and the barbershop, the little room had a relatively low profile. Speaker Henry Rainey liked to work there “unbothered by job hunters and self-appointed advice givers,” according to the newspapers. Speaker Jack Garner used it as a second home. Ettie—his wife, secretary, and close advisor—cooked his meals there on a stove especially installed for them.

View Larger

Collection of the U.S. House of Representatives

About this object Ettie and Jack Garner were a powerful pair during the latter's three decades in the House. Ettie served as his secretary and cooked his lunch every day in the Board of Education.

Speaker William Bankhead gave the room to Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, beginning the space's most storied era as Rayburn's hideaway during his long Speakership. Soon the room took on the name it is still known by today—the Board of Education. Party leaders met to drink, quiz selected House Members on political matters, and plot legislative strategy. In a different spot in the Capitol Speaker Nicholas Longworth pioneered the custom, and the name, of the convivial retreat, but it was Rayburn who most famously used it as a political tool. His ability to gather new and seasoned Representatives in the Board of Education, serving them bourbon while he gathered information and issued tactical marching orders, was the stuff of lore. Although Rayburn made the Board of Education legendary, he never referred to it that way, calling it simply “the little room” downstairs from the House Chamber.

View Larger

Rayburn's Influence

Rayburn outfitted the room with shabby, comfortable furniture—old “Turkish” tufted chairs, a long leather couch, threadbare carpet, and a big desk that had drawers jammed with bottles of bourbon and Scotch. Rayburn had the Texas seal painted on the west wall of the room, and below it he placed two stanchions holding the U.S. flag and the Lone Star banner carried by the Texas Delegation at the 1932 Democratic National Convention. He also hung two portraits: his official Speaker’s portrait and a rendering of Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas.

The small circle of regulars who joined Rayburn to “strike a blow for liberty”—as Garner called their tumblers of liquor in the days of Prohibition—included longtime House Parliamentarian Lewis Deschler, Representative Lyndon Johnson of Texas, and a few committee chairs. Senator, and later Vice President, Harry Truman was another frequent visitor. Truman was relaxing with Rayburn and friends when President Franklin Roosevelt died. The Capitol switchboard patched the White House’s urgent call to the Board of Education. Truman went pale, muttered “Jesus Christ and General Jackson,” and grabbed his hat as he rushed out the door to assume the presidency.

Pelosi says Congress should "proceed tonight at the Capitol once it is cleared for use"

In a letter to colleagues on Wednesday evening, Pelosi condemned the "shameful" riots in the Capitol and said she believed Congress should proceed with tallying Electoral College votes once the Capitol is secured.

"Today, a shameful assault was made on our democracy. It was anointed at the highest level of government. It cannot, however, deter us from our responsibility to validate the election of Joe Biden," Pelosi said. "To that end, in consultation with Leader Hoyer and Whip Clyburn and after calls to the Pentagon, the Justice Department and the Vice President, we have decided we should proceed tonight at the Capitol once it is cleared for use. Leader Hoyer will be sending out more guidance later today."

Pelosi also expressed hope that "this instigation to violence will provide an epiphany for our country to heal."

"We always knew this responsibility would take us into the night. The night may still be long but we are hopeful for a shorter agenda, but our purpose will be accomplished," Pelosi said. "We also knew that we would be a part of history in a positive way, today, despite ill-founded objections to the Electoral College vote. We now will be part of history, as such a shameful picture of our country was put out to the world, instigated at the highest level."

ALEX EDELMAN/AFP/Getty Images

There's no other word but terrifying. On Jan. 6, rioters stormed the U.S. Capitol Building in Washington D.C. after President Donald Trump delivered a rally speech where he claimed, once again without evidence, that the November 2020 election was stolen from him. As police failed to hold back crowds, some Trump supporters forced their way into the building. These tweets from the U.S. Capitol during the attempted coup are a frightening read, and show the disturbing perspective on the ground.

While information is still coming out, the initial details from those present are frightening. Around 1 p.m. ET, rioters reportedly entered the Capitol and forced their way into the chambers where legislators were confirming the election of President-elect Joe Biden. Legislators and those inside the Capitol were reportedly instructed to shelter in place, per multiple accounts. The White House did not immediately respond to Elite Daily's request for comment regarding the situation and President Trump's influence on events.

Terrifying photos and videos showed glimpses of the events inside the Capitol building, including security with guns pointed at rioters and legislators and congressional staff crouching beneath chairs and desks in the legislative chambers. Many members of Congress and those present tweeted out what they were seeing.

According to live reports from The Washington Post, the national guard will be activated, and at least one person has been shot inside the building. According to a Jan. 6, 1:31 p.m. tweet from Complex's Steven Nelson, there appeared to be some type of gas in the Capitol building entryway.

As of Jan. 6, there's no evidence Trump directly or intentionally incited his supporters to riot. However, he's received criticism in the past for failing to condemn certain right-wing militia groups, such as the Proud Boys. In fact, in September 2020, Trump directly addressed the Proud Boys, telling them to "stand back and stand by" during the first presidential debate, and many Americans interpreted his words as a cryptic message for the future should he lose to Biden in the presidential election — which, he did. The Trump 2020 campaign did not respond to Elite Daily's request for comment at the time.

Since then, Trump has refused to concede the election, and has only seemed to drift further and further away from reality as he continues to make baseless claims about election fraud on nearly every public platform he can. His supporters have already stormed the Capitol, so who knows what might happen next between now and Biden's inauguration on Jan. 20? Hopefully, it won't be more of this. <https://www.elitedaily.com/p/tweets-from-the-us-capitol-during-the-attempted-coup-are-a-frightening-read-54517239>

Aka Building Evidence Against Pelosi_7

So I noticed that a photographer named Saul Loeb is credited on most of the Getty Images posted online from the “siege of the Capitol Building” seemingly taken in real time as President Trump was still speaking to a massive crowd of American Citizens during the 1/6/2021 Stop The Steal rally 45 minutes away. Open Sourced research shows that Loeb is a “photojournalist” assigned to the WH, yet on 1/6/2021 Saul was photographing at the Capitol Building Elector Vote in the joint session of Congress, instead of following Trump from the WH to his speaking engagement, Saul Loeb works for AFP – the French state newspaper. I have a solid understanding of the French language, and can also invoke Google Translate as can any other Citizen Researcher. I looked up Saul Loeb on Bing, went to his page on Twitter, and from there followed a contact chain that led me down a tight rabbit hole of associations that lead to both Italy and China. The contact chain also has branches of influence from Corporate America, Banking/Wall Street and Radical Ideologies WW.

The pastes below show that contact chain:

<https://www.referenceforbusiness.com/history2/57/Agence-France-Presse.html>

By the late 1990s, analysts were forecasting that the mobile telephone market would become the world's dominant means of both data and voice transmission in the early years of the 21st century, a forecast that appeared increasingly more likely with the introduction of the WAP (wireless application protocol) standard in 1999. AFP made a strong move toward establishing a position in this new market when it signed a global cooperation agreement with mobile telephone giant Nokia, of Finland, in December 1999. Under terms of the agreement, AFP began providing sports, financial, and general news transmissions in English, French, German, Portuguese, and Spanish to a market expected shortly to undergo a huge expansion; by 2005, industry analysts expected mobile telephones to replace personal computers as the chief means of accessing the Internet.

As AFP entered the new century, however, it remained hampered by its quasi-governmental status. New CEO Eric Giuily, elected in 1999, began his tenure proposing changes to the legislation governing AFP's operations. He was particularly interested in opening the company to private investors; he also promised to orient the company more toward English-language news. Vehement protests to the latter by the company's journalists, who shut down the company during a strike, forced Giuily to back off from this proposal. Nonetheless, it seemed evident that in order to maintain its position as one of the world's top three news agencies, AFP needed a new and more financially independent status.

https://polaris.brighterir.com/public/sec_newgate/news/rns/story/xo3ve2x/export 15 July 2020:

SEC Newgate S.p.A. ("SEC Newgate" or the "Group")

Artificial Intelligence TRUE® platform for communications industry launch in Italy

SEC Newgate (AIM: SECG), the international communications, advocacy and research group, announces the launch of TRUE®, its proprietary AI powered platform to run extensive and totally new-to-market semantic and reputation assessments.

TRUE® is being launched in Italy in July following €1.5 million of investment and nearly three years of development in association with a pool of experts from international universities including Bocconi, Italy's leading business school, and Imperial College London. The launch is also being supported by the platform's first client, TreNord, Italy's largest local rail services company, which has been using the tool as a beta tester.

TRUE® is initially functional in Italian but, from its inception, has been engineered to work in five European languages (English, French, German and Spanish, in addition to Italian) and will be progressively developed and fine-tuned to be operative in these linguistic contexts; English will be the next development stage of the platform, which is expected to be available during Q4 2020.

Commenting on this state-of-the-art technology, Fiorenzo Tagliabue, the Group's CEO, said:

"SEC Newgate has taken a significant step forward in boosting the communications industry's influence in reputation assessment through the adoption of Artificial Intelligence. TRUE® will provide unprecedented analysis capability for entities for which reputation is a strategic asset. TRUE® is the sole platform allowing continuous assessment and real time measurement of any reputational aspect across all available public data sources.

"TRUE® moves away from traditional reputation assessment tools which only use sample data and were developed to create corporate rankings. Our AI platform is a solid and consistent tool which can analyse an infinite number of data sources to support the protection and development of brand value. It provides senior communications professionals and company executives with detailed insights into all the elements that are positively or negatively impacting their brand's reputation, across a wide range of stakeholders."

Was it a Trap for Trump?

Cc: File: Was storming the capitol a trap for trump

A photo surfaced the day of the Capitol Siege of the desk of Speaker Pelosi.

The computer is there, and at the bottom of the HP screen are several Postit-notes hand-written and barely notice-ale as more than Office Clutter. WE decided to take a closer look:

Below is a clip from the desk of Speaker Pelosi:

<https://history.house.gov/Exhibitions-and-Publications/Capitol/The-Board-of-Education/>

The Board of Education

View Larger

Image courtesy of the Office of the Clerk, U.S. House of Representatives The murals of flora and fauna of the territories, and Native American objects reflect the room's original use.

The small room tucked away on the first floor of the Capitol became famous in the 20th century as the “Board of Education,” where House leaders met to relax and share information and strategy. The space was part of the 1857 extension of the Capitol, and the Committee on Territories claimed it first, but Speakers of the House have used it since the turn of the 20th century.

A Room for Speakers

The Speaker of the House took over the future Board of Education in 1901. For many Speakers, it offered an escape from their public offices near the House Chamber. Tucked away on a narrow corridor, close to storage rooms and the barbershop, the little room had a relatively low profile. Speaker Henry Rainey liked to work there “unbothered by job hunters and self-appointed advice givers,” according to the newspapers. Speaker Jack Garner used it as a second home. Ettie—his wife, secretary, and close advisor—cooked his meals there on a stove especially installed for them.

View Larger

Collection of the U.S. House of Representatives

About this object Ettie and Jack Garner were a powerful pair during the latter's three decades in the House. Ettie served as his secretary and cooked his lunch every day in the Board of Education.

Speaker William Bankhead gave the room to Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, beginning the space's most storied era as Rayburn's hideaway during his long Speakership.

Soon the room took on the name it is still known by today—the Board of Education. Party leaders met to drink, quiz selected House Members on political matters, and plot legislative strategy. In a different spot in the Capitol Speaker Nicholas Longworth pioneered the custom, and the name, of the convivial retreat, but it was Rayburn who most famously used it as a political tool. His ability to gather new and seasoned Representatives in the Board of Education, serving them bourbon while he gathered information and issued tactical marching orders, was the stuff of lore. Although Rayburn made the Board of Education legendary, he never referred to it that way, calling it simply “the little room” downstairs from the House Chamber.

Rayburn's Influence

Rayburn outfitted the room with shabby, comfortable furniture—old “Turkish” tufted chairs, a long leather couch, threadbare carpet, and a big desk that had drawers jammed with bottles of bourbon and Scotch. Rayburn had the Texas seal painted on the west wall of the room, and below it he placed two stanchions holding the U.S. flag and the Lone Star banner carried by the Texas Delegation at the 1932 Democratic National Convention. He also hung two portraits: his official Speaker’s portrait and a rendering of Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas.

The small circle of regulars who joined Rayburn to “strike a blow for liberty”—as Garner called their tumblers of liquor in the days of Prohibition—included longtime House Parliamentarian Lewis Deschler, Representative Lyndon Johnson of Texas, and a few committee chairs. Senator, and later Vice President, Harry Truman was another frequent visitor. Truman was relaxing with Rayburn and friends when President Franklin Roosevelt died. The Capitol switchboard patched the White House’s urgent call to the Board of Education. Truman went pale, muttered “Jesus Christ and General Jackson,” and grabbed his hat as he rushed out the door to assume the presidency.
