

VACCINE SAFETY

RESEARCH FOUNDATION

Hi Anon,

The Vaccine Safety Research Foundation (VSRF) needs volunteers to reach out to the tens of thousands of Americans who have signed our petition calling for the repeal of the National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act of 1986.

Most of these supporters have never had the opportunity to speak directly with another member of the VSRF community. Many feel isolated, ignored, or dismissed.

VSRF is building a nationwide volunteer calling team to change that.

You Have Already Taken a Stand

Thank you again for signing the petition - you demonstrated that this issue matters to you.

You have already helped build a movement that is shining a spotlight on the harm caused by the 1986 law. Because of this law, vaccine makers cannot be sued. Injuries continue to occur under the legal protections it provides to vaccine manufacturers.

Now we're asking you to volunteer your time to help bring about a big increase in the impact we're having.

Help Us Reach People Who Need Us

Many who signed the petition may have been injured by a vaccine, or their children, their families, or people they care about. Others simply believe this is an important issue that America can no longer afford to ignore.

Because of the overwhelming media narrative that all vaccines are "safe and effective," many injured people feel overlooked, disregarded, and alone. They have nowhere to turn.

Some first learned about the 1986 law through a VSRF video or social media post. For many, signing the petition was the first step in a journey. You can help guide that journey.

We're Expanding a Nationwide Movement

VSRF is building a nationwide volunteer calling team to reach out to supporters, listen to their stories, answer questions, strengthen relationships, raise money to help put the spotlight on the injuries caused by vaccines, and increase the pressure on Congress to repeal this unjust and harmful law.

What Is VSRF and What Does It Do?

The Vaccine Safety Research Foundation (VSRF) is a nonprofit organization committed to advancing independent scientific research, promoting medical transparency, and supporting individuals affected by vaccine injuries.

Our work focuses on investigating vaccine safety, educating the public through research and expert interviews, advocating for informed consent, and providing a platform for open scientific discussion. Through initiatives including our weekly VSRF Live broadcasts (viewed by thousands), educational and legal conferences, public awareness campaigns, and support for the vaccine-injured community, we strive to ensure that medical decisions are guided by accurate information, rigorous science, and individual choice.

We believe that truth, transparency, and informed consent are essential to a healthy and free society.

What Volunteer Callers Do

- Thank supporters for signing the petition
- Ask questions: have they or someone they know been injured by a vaccine?
- Give an update on VSRF's activities and campaigns
- Invite supporters to make a financial contribution to help sustain VSRF's outreach, research, and advocacy efforts

Why Volunteers Love This Work

Every conversation is an opportunity to help someone feel heard.

Many supporters have spent years feeling marginalized, belittled, and unheard. A simple conversation can provide encouragement, understanding, and a sense of community.

That's rewarding enough by itself. How often during a normal work week does one have the opportunity to have a truly personal and meaningful conversation?

In addition, you can be part of a dynamic and powerful force that's shaping America's future.

What VSRF Provides

- Training and support
- Calling scripts
- Access to VSRF's professional calling system
- Weekly meetings with other volunteer callers
- Ongoing guidance and coaching

No Experience Necessary.

You do not need prior fundraising, non-profit, political, or telephone experience. You will not need to use a mobile phone or a landline - all you need is a computer, a headset, and an internet connection.

If you can give even one hour per week, you can make a meaningful contribution to this effort.

Why This Work Is Urgent

The 1986 law removed normal civil liability from vaccine manufacturers and created a system that has left countless injured Americans without meaningful recourse.

Every day, more people are injured under a system that protects vaccine makers from being sued for injuries or harm caused by their products.

Only a powerful grassroots movement can generate the public awareness and political pressure necessary to change those facts.

The Big Pharma lobby has billions of dollars at its disposal, and contributes massively to elected officials to maintain their favored position.
